Benefits of Choosing Vinyl?

Vinyl windows hold both aesthetic and structural advantages, some of which include:

- Eco-friendliness: Vinyl windows are champions when it comes to preventing heat transfer; you'll be able to keep hot air out during the summer and cool air out during the winter, keeping your utility bills consistently low. Because vinyl windows are so airtight, they're also great at reducing the amount of noise entering your home from outside (and vice versa).
- Maintenance-free durability: Unlike wooden windows, which may need to be periodically repainted or sealed with a protective coating, vinyl windows require no more maintenance than an occasional swipe with a damp cloth. These windows won't rust, weaken, or corrode over time, making them perhaps the most durable choice in today's market.
- Affordability: Although "you get what you pay for" is an adage that holds true in many contexts, when it comes to windows, your most durable option (vinyl) is also the least expensive.
- Easy customization: No matter the color or style of your home's exterior, you're sure to find a vinyl window that perfectly matches. These windows are available in a variety of colors and styles, ensuring a great aesthetic fit without the need to paint or stain.

What Types of Vinyl Windows Are Available?

Once you've decided on vinyl for your replacement windows, you'll then need to choose from among a variety of window types. The best choice can largely depend on the size of your house, the size of your windows, and your planned window usage.

- Double hung windows consist of two sashes within a single frame; this allows the windows to be opened from either the top or the bottom, making cleaning a breeze.
- Single hung windows have only a single sash within the frame.
- Casement windows are attached to the frame with a hinge, and can swing out freely. These windows are ideal for below-grade rooms that require more ventilation than may be available with a single- or double hung window.
- Picture windows don't open like other types of windows, but are large and fixed within a wall (much like a picture).
- Bay windows generally consist of several panels set at different angles to create the illusion of more space.
- Bow windows are similar to bay windows but usually contain four to five panels as compared to a bay window's three-panel design.
- Garden Windows have side ventilation panels that can allow air to flow through the window while still keeping the main glass intact.
- Custom Shaped Windows can be designed to your specifications to fit any room (or wall) in your home.
